Ordnance Plants To Be Known As Joliet Arsenal

Under a war department directive, the Elwood Ordnance
Plant and Kankakee Ordnance
Works have been consolidated and redesignated as the "Joliet
Argenal," it was announced today by Col Byron Rife, commanding officer.

Decontamination work and termination inventory is progressing satisfactorily and every effort is being made to complete this by Dec. 1, Col. Rife added.

A 100,000,000 volt electron acelerator, or betatron, in use durng the war by General Electric, which recently revealed its serets, will penetrate a thickness of metal many times greater has that probed by former inlustrial X-ray units in use.